The long expected rough house fight occurred in one of the colored pool rooms last night during which Wheeler George was frightfully cut by John Elder. Both are colored. Victim swears vengeance. Elder tells story to Mayor and is discharged.

Elder Wiends His Knife In Poolroom Fight Victim Frightfully Slashed

Wheeler George, With an Awful Cut in His Cheek, Walks Unaided to Office of a Physician, Leaving Trail of Blood Along the Street—Evidence Shows Victim Was to Blame for the Trouble, Which Occurred in James' Poolroom.

ELDER RELEASED FROM CUSTODY

With blood pouring in a steady stream from a deep knife stab in his cheek, where John Elder had buried his knife during a desperate fight, Wheeler George, also colored, made his way from the James James pool room to Dr. Harry Jenkins' office at eight o'clock Tuesday night, leaving a trail of blood along the street the entire way.

Elder stabbed George during a fight which started in the colored pool room on South Fayette street below the Dice Mark Hardware Company, using a pocket knife whetted to a razor edge, and from the statement of Elder himself and those who saw the affray, did it in self-defense.

At Dr. Jenkins' office it was found that the knife had laid open the skin from near the point of the jaw, to within two inches of his right ear, where it penetrated upward, severing a blood vessel and almost severing the muscle of the jaw. The main wound required five stitches to close, and one stitch was taken to hold the muscle together.

Another wound over the left eye where George was struck with a pool ball required two stitches to close. The blood poured from the wound until it was closed, and two quarts is a small estimate of the amount of blood the victim lost.

After the wound was dressed, George was sent home, apparently little the worse for the encounter. His clothes from neck to toe were soaked with blood, and the sight was sickening to look upon, and many of those who saw him took one look and hurried away.

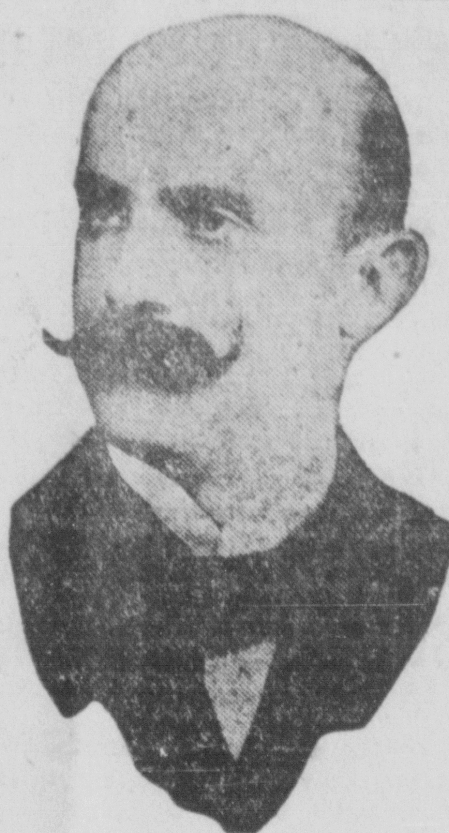

Elder, who is a partner of James James in the pool room, was arrested and taken before Mayor Allen, where he was examined and released as the evidence indicated that he had been drawn into the affray. He bore a discolored eye, the only mark he received in the affray.

George claimed that the trouble grew out of an altercation, and that Elder struck him with a pool ball, and that in the scrimmage that followed they fell to the floor at the edge of a pool stable in the James pool room, and that Elder drew his knife and struck him while he was down. "I won't have him arrested for this little cut," said George, "but John had better look out". "I'll soon

Former Minister of Finance Heads New French Cabinet.

Six Stay In French Cabinet

New French Premier Selects Ministry in a Hurry.

Paris, June 28.—The new French ministry has been formed. Six of the members of the new cabinet were members of the Monis cabinet. The cabinet is as follows:

Minister of the interior, Joseph Caillaux; minister of justice, Jean Cruppi; minister of marine, Theophile Delcasse; minister of war, Adolphe Messimy; minister of public instruction, Jules Pams; minister of finance, Louis Klotz; minister of labor, Rene Renoult; minister of foreign affairs, M. Deslves; minister of public works, M. Augagneur; minis-

Flies Through Gorge

Aviator Beachey Astonishes Spectators at Niagara.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 28.—Lincoln Beachey made an aeroplane flight over the city, across the lower Niagara, high over the American falls and then, circling back from Canada, he dipped at frightful speed into the gorge and sailed most beautifully under the giant arch of the upper steel bridge. Then he followed the gorge for a mile or more and, rising out of it, he flew over Niagara Falls, Ont., and landed in the outskirts of the Canadian city safe and sound. Thousands witnessed the spectacle.

TELLS OF EARLY MARRIAGE

Eloped From Detroit to Canada With West Point Graduate at Tender Age of 14 and Lived With Husband's Parents in Sandusky, O. Could Not Agree and Soon Secured Divorce—Admits Relations With Alleged Smuggler.

New York, June 28.—In this morning's issue the New York American prints an eight-column autobiography by Helen Dwelle Jenkins, the dashing woman whose jewels and the tale of their being smuggled into this country have brought notoriety to Nathan Allen of Kenosha, Wis., John R. Collins of Nashville, herself and others. She frankly admits her relations with Allen, but says he was the only one.

In introducing herself to the American newspaper reading public, she says: "My only marriage was an elopement. I was traveling in the north with my mother in October, 1901. I was then 14 years old and in short dresses. At Detroit I met Lee Allen Dwelle; he was 26, handsome, athletic and a graduate of West Point. He looked every inch the soldier. His father was the owner of a big line of steamers that plied between Sandusky and Detroit. Ten days after I met him we slipped away from my mother in Detroit, crossed the river into Canada and were married. He had resigned from the army and was learning to manage his father's great business. We lived with his mother in the family's fine mansions both in Sandusky and Detroit.

"His mother was of the old school. She was proud and rich. I was a child and brought no money to the family. She didn't like me, child that I was. After an unhappy life with his family for several months we went away from them to live alone in Chicago.

"There at the end of our first year of married life, my dreams of happiness were completely shattered. I divorced him for cause. I hope he is doing well and is happy. I am not."

Argue That State Is Guilty

Diegel's Attorneys Call It Crime to Entrap Lawmakers.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Judge Kinkead postponed until today his decision on the motion made by attorneys for R. J. Diegel, indicted assembly attaché, to have the court instruct the jury to acquit Diegel on the charge of abetting bribery. The entire day was given over to arguments on the question of entrapment. Attorneys for the defense declared that if a crime had been committed it had been by the law officers of Franklin county, not by the indicted senators, who had been led into temptation. If the owner of property consented to its being burglarized there was no offense, under the law they maintained; and the same holding would stand when the state consented to an entrapment to bribe.

State counsel declared that many courts had indorsed such entrapments as the only way of unearthing bribery.

FACTS ARE ASKED FOR IN HARBOR CASE RESOLUTION FOR PRESIDENT

Poindexter, of Washington, Demanded That President Taft Produce All Records Bearing on Alaska Navigation Company Case—Motion Passed by Senate Yesterday.

CONTROLLER BAY IS AT STAKE

Representative From the Northwest Takes Tip From Gifford Pinchot's Statement Relative to Alaskan Coal Situation and Will Seek to Head Off Attempt of Big Interests to Secure Control of Only Transportation Outlet For Product.

Washington, June 28.—Without opposing vote the resolution introduced by Senator Poindexter of Washington, demanding that President Taft produce all records bearing on the Controller bay (Alaska) filing by James J. Ryan and others connected with the Controller Railroad and Navigation company, was passed by the senate.

Poindexter's resolution is a result of the charge that the Guggenheim syndicate in Alaska can afford to laugh over the loss of the Cunningham coal claims by decision of the land office, provided it is able to engineer through its application, now pending before the department, for the bay's harbor privileges.

Poindexter said: "Control of transportation and access to these coal fields is equivalent to control of the coal itself. The harbor of Controller bay is the only available deep water within reasonable access of the coal fields."

Clerks Are Busy With Data

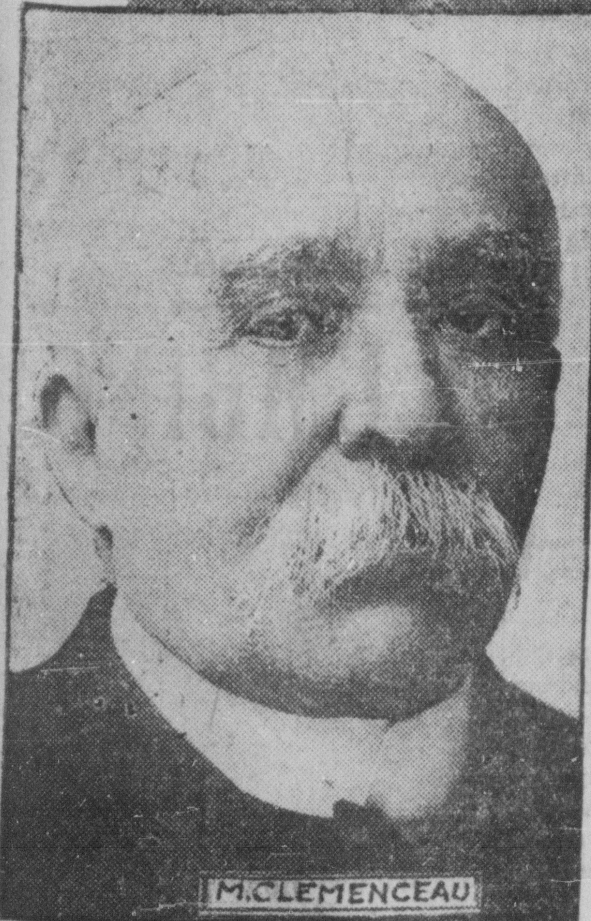

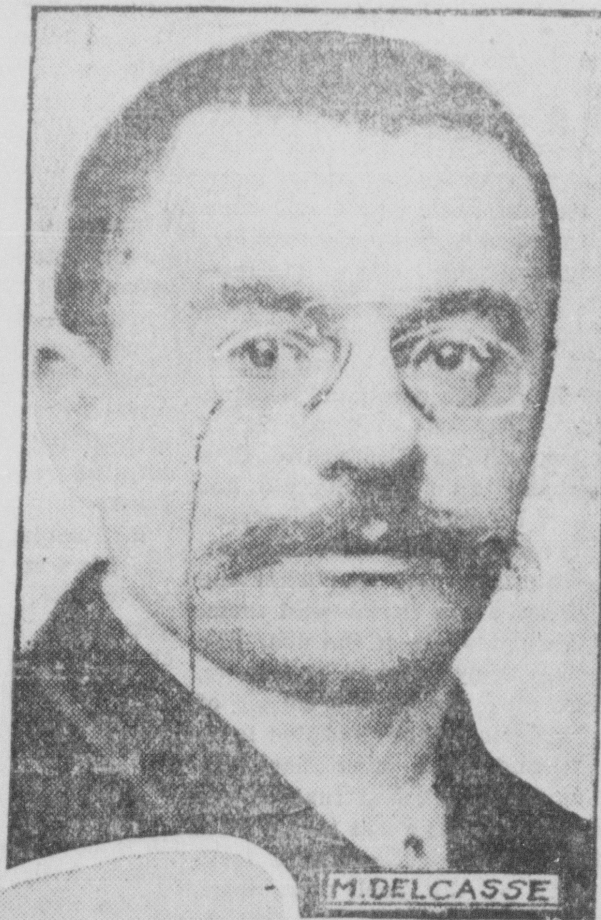

Central Passenger Roads Will Fight Two-Cent Rate.

Chicago, June 28.—Railroads in the Central Passenger association are considering an attack on the validity of the 2-cent laws in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Rate clerks of the interested roads met in Chicago to outline plans for tabulating data on the subject of carrying passengers at 2 cents a mile. As soon as the information has been compiled it will be turned over to lawyers, to be examined, with the idea of taking up the matter before the interstate commerce commission.

Teachers Adopt New Rule.

Cedar Point, O., June 28.—After choosing the officers for the last 40 years, the "house of presidents" of the Ohio State Teachers' association was overthrown by a large majority, and it was decided that every one of the 1,200 members, instead of the 20 ex-presidents, should vote for the officers.

Principal Members of French Cabinet Which Has Fallen

Joseph Caillaux, who was Minister of Finance in the retiring French Cabinet, has been appointed premier by President Fallieres. He was recommended by Monis, the retiring premier. Some pressure was brought to bear upon Fallieres to name M. Clemenceau as head of the new cabinet. Delcasse was Minister of Marine and Cruppi was Foreign Minister in the late cabinet.

Ill Health and Despondency Given as Cause of Suicide Mrs. Parker's Tragic Death

Mother of Six Children, After Serving the Noonday Meal, Placed a 22-Caliber Rifle to Her Breast and Pulls the Trigger--Death Resulted a Few Minutes Afterward and Before Medical Aid, Which Was Summoned, Could Reach Her.

SAD ENDING.

Bereaved Husband Was at Work at the Dahl-Millikan Co. Plant When the Tragedy Occurred--The Neighbors Render Assistance.

The entire southern part of the city was shocked at the noon hour today by the news of the tragic death of Mrs. Fannie B. Parker, aged about 32, wife of David Parker, of 733 S. North street. Mrs. Parker committed suicide by placing a 22 caliber rifle against her left breast, and pulling the trigger. Death resulted within fifteen minutes and before medical aid which was summoned at once, could reach her.

Mrs. Parker is said to have been despondent for some time because of ill health, and it is believed that the rash act which resulted in her death was committed on the inspiration of the moment, during one of her fits of despondency. The awful tragedy occurred in the front room of the Parker residence, and the only ones in the house at the time were the six small children, who were gathered about the dinner table in an adjoining room.

At the time the deed was committed, Mr. Parker, who is in the shipping department of the Dahl-Millikan Grocery plant, was busy at his work, and had not gone home for his dinner, but intended taking lunch at a restaurant because of the pressing work. He was notified by neighbors, and hurried to his saddened home, almost heartbroken.

Walter Snyder, living next door to the Parker home, stated that he had just seated himself at the dinner table when he heard the children in the Parker home screaming, but as they sometimes made considerable noise he did not investigate the cause until the screaming grew louder, and one of them shouted that the mother had killed herself.

Snyder rushed into the house and found Mrs. Parker lying full length on the floor, gasping for breath, while a rifle lay at her feet, and the odor of the discharged weapon filled the room. He stooped over her and placed his hand under her head, but she was unconscious. By this time neighbors had arrived and tried to quiet the screaming children and restore the dying woman. A physician was summoned but Mrs. Parker was beyond human aid and expired within a few minutes. A small burned place on the bosom of her dress showed where the muzzle of the weapon had been placed.

The children claim that she had gotten dinner in readiness and following a dispute between two of the children made the remark that she "could stand this no longer" and walked into the front room, and a moment later the rifle report sounded and they rushed in and found her on the floor.

Coroner L. P. Howell was summoned after dinner and conducted the examination of the body and the scene of the tragedy.

Mrs. Parker leaves six children, four boys and two girls, the oldest being 12 years of age and the youngest 18 months of age.

She was a sister of Los and Dug. Crone, and Mrs. Karney. The Parker family have lived on South North street for four years, moving there from a farm on the Chillicothe pike.

The sad affair leaves the motherless children, husband and great many friends stricken with deepest sorrow.

Judge Festus Walters Stunned by Lightning

During a violent electrical storm in Pickaway county Saturday afternoon Judge Festus Walters, and a number of farm employees were severely stunned by a bolt of lightning which struck a shed in which part of them had taken refuge.

James Woodruff and Jacob Cook, farm hands, sustained the worst injuries.

Woodruff was sitting on a barrel and Robert Walters was standing on another barrel beside him, when the shock came, the former slid to the ground saying he was killed and could not move. His legs were marked with red stripes. One of the fingers of Robert Walters right hand was hurt.

The rest of the men, including Judge Walters, were on the loaded wagons. Joseph Walters was marked on the right breast with a red cross.

The lightning struck the west end of the building and traveled its entire length, tearing off boards at either end. That it was not attended with more serious results to the men was due, perhaps, to the fact that the doors were on an iron truck, and this metal, probably deflected a large portion of the electrical current.

John Dailey Lectured Again

John Dailey, the man accused of not supporting his family properly, and arrested for not complying with a Board of Health order, appeared before Mayor Allen Tuesday night to report progress and ask advice.

Progress, according to John, is very good, and—he got the advice. He is constructing sanitary closets among the "flats" in "flat iron row" but was economizing by making the walls too thin. He was advised to do it right while he was at it, and save doing the work once more.

John received another good lecture on the care of his family, and offered a mild protest against something his neighbors had said, but it would not do. He has been furnishing a little more, but no better class of food, according to information gleaned by the Mayor, and was told that the kind had to be better and that there must be more of it.

Skin Troubles--Many

A large percentage of people have some sort of an affliction of the skin. If slight, it will become worse, if not given attention. If already annoying, relief can be had by using MANOLINE. Don't neglect the care of the skin. Water and pure soap should be used freely, then finish the bath by using MANOLINE; you'll be surprised at how quickly you will notice skin improvement.

There are 360 drops of MANOLINE in a tube, costs 25c instead of One or Two Dollars. Absolutely as represented in every respect. Money back if not.

Elder Wiels His Knife

be alright, and this is not going to amount to anything," he continued as the blood was washed from the wound.

When asked where the stabbing took place, Elder stated that he did not know he stabbed him, which statement was accepted with a pinch of salt. "He has always been more or less trouble," said Elder, and came in tonight and started the trouble. We tangled up and I had to do something to protect myself for he is a bad man, and was making motions with his hand like this, and he indicated the motion of a hand bearing a knife. Elder was evidently badly frightened, and the officers think that it is possibly true that he did not know that he stabbed his adversary during the excitement of the moment.

Eye-witnesses state that after the men scuffled about in the pool room, that Elder came out of the door like an arrow, closely pursued by George, and that they ran to the corner of East street, where they scuffled for a moment, and then came back up street at top speed, and that on the return sprint George was in the lead. The two came together some forty feet north of the pool room door, where the first evidence of blood remains on the sidewalk.

When the two came together there was a momentary mix-up, and George was seen to take his hand and brush the blood from his face, so that it is evident the cutting must have occurred north of the pool room door instead of in the pool room.

Elder has never been in trouble before, he claims, and others bear out his statement. He has apparently shunned trouble.

With George the story is different. He has been in trouble numerous times, and upon one occasion was cut so badly that death nearly resulted while engaged in a fight in a Columbus saloon some two years ago.

He was also mixed up in a family row in his home in this city and the result came near being disastrous to Wheeler and other members of the family. He has the reputation of being a bad fellow.

It is thought no further action will be taken by the authorities in the case, unless an affidavit is filed by one of the principals in the scrap.

MISREPRESENTED HORSE AND GETS INTO TROUBLE BAKER SNIDER STUNG

Gint Osborn, a horse dealer of New Vienna, came within a hairs' breadth of going to prison Tuesday for selling a horse to Chas. Snider, the baker, and making gross misrepresentations as to the animal's condition.

Osborn approached Mr. Snider and offered him the horse for $70. The animal was apparently as sound as a dollar. Mr. Snider was very busy at the time and told Osborn that if the horse was sound he would buy him if he would sell it for $65. He was assured that the horse was as sound as a dollar and told that if he did not find it so he would return the money.

Mr. Snider gave him a check and had his men to hitch it to the delivery wagon. Meanwhile Osborn had hurried to the bank and had the check cashed and was on his way to the B. & O. railroad to catch a train for home.

When Mr. Snider had the horse ready to go and gave the word to "gid ap" the horse started out as if it had forty hinges in its backbone, with no control over either hinge. It was half paralyzed in the back, and could no more "strike a gait" than a woman in a hobble skirt.

Mr. Snider was not slow in placing the police after his man, and he was rounded up and forced, under threat of arrest, to disgorge the money and take the horse, which he did after he found there was no alternative. Meanwhile Mr. Snider is coming in for a great deal of jolly about his horse deal.

"Don't you think there is danger in allowing automobiles to be run by women?"

"Well," replied the man who is careful about expressing an opinion, "they're all right in cities where they meet only horses and street cars, but on a country road I should think there would be great danger of their shying at a cow."

Pathetic Story Told by Mother

Tuesday evening at 6:14, Mrs. Margaret Moore, of near Osborn, Greene county, was removed from the B. & O. train, taken at once in a hack to the Hodson Hospital, and before seven o'clock had given birth to a fine daughter.

Mrs. Moore is a daughter of Ma Linda McGill, Springfield, Ohio, R. F. D. No. 6, and wife of Milford Moore. She claims that her husband deserted her at Roanoke, Va., and she took the train for home, arriving in Chillicothe where her money gave out and she started to walk, making her way to Five Points in northwestern Pickaway county, where her sad condition was ascertained by some people who placed her in a rig and drove her to Madison Mills, where she took the B. & O. train for this city, and arrived as above stated. Her relatives have been notified and will, probably remove her as soon as possible. Mother and babe are doing very nicely.

Deigle's Motion For Acquittal Is Overruled

Special to Herald.

Columbus, Ohio, June 28th.—

Judge Kinkead today overruled the defendant's motion to direct a verdict of not guilty in the trial of Rodney Deigle, charged with soliciting a bribe.

The judge held that the grounds of the motion were insufficient.

Five Hundred Men Under R. C. Hunt

R. C. Hunt, who has charge of the construction of a mammoth tunnel on the Connelville division of the B. & O. in Pennsylvania near the Maryland line, came home Saturday morning and remained over Sunday with his wife in this city.

Mr. Hunt reports splendid progress on the big work which will require eighteen months for completion. Mr. Hunt has charge of 500 men and directs the work. Four steam shovels are kept busy, and the blasting of stone requires the attention of a large number of men. The job is one of the largest ever attempted by the B. & O. railroad, and is being watched by engineers and contractors all over the world.

Mr. Hunt returns tonight to resume his duties.

Jagging Jennie.

He had joined the multitude in New York since his quick fortune came to him and was entertaining his friends at dinner. The service was magnificent, and so was the dinner. His wife, gorgeously clad, reigned over the table. During all in the conversation he watched a servant who was dexterously removing crumbs from the cloth. Then he looked down the glistening table at his jeweled wife and remarked:

"Jennie, remember when you used to shake the tablecloth out of the back door to the hens?"

"What's the matter with Ames?" demanded one of the men on the clubhouse porch.

"Up in Canada last fall," Fobes readily resumed, "I went off by myself one day, when Ames was fiddling over his kodak, and I stumbled full on a black bear. Because I was the only thing in sight, very likely, I became the immediate object of her ugly attentions. I ran. I had only a slight lead, but I was going pretty well when Ames poked through the brush and took in the situation."

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Superiority of Light Diet.

The superiority of the monodiet, with slight variation, has been demonstrated, and those who advocate indiscriminate variety must give some reason. A friend commented on the greatly improved appearance of a Chicago business man, aged fifty-six. "What do you think I'm eating?" he replied. "Cornmeal mush and milk morning and evening. And eating only one thing at a time, I am not so apt to overeat." Under perfectly natural conditions appetite would be a safe guide, but our living is now extremely complex and in nothing more than eating. If it is true that excessive variety is the chief physical cause of cancer we need to consider our eating habits.

Mrs. Madaline B. Sharp Quietly Married Tuesday

A wedding of paramount interest in this city, and also in the educational circles of Delaware was quietly solemnized Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Madeline Sharp and Prof. W. W. Davies, of the Ohio Wesleyan University, were married by Rev. T. W. Locke, of Grace church.

Mrs. Sharp, one of the wealthiest women in this section of the state and a woman of high standards and purposes. She has been particularly active in the temperance movement, both in state and local relations, President of the W. C. T. U. for a number of years, and also extensively engaged in the work of Grace church and the Missionary societies. Mrs. Sharp has always been closely in touch with and deeply interested in the Ohio Wesleyan university.

Prof. Davies, who has occupied the chair of languages at the O. W. U. for a number of years, is widely known in the collegiate world. He has had the advantages of extensive travel and culture, and has met with marked success in his chosen work.

The ceremony was performed at half-past three o'clock at the handsome home of the bride, with only Mrs. Sharp's nephew, Mr. J. M. Baker and family in attendance.

Prof. and Mrs. Davies left on the afternoon train for Delaware and expect to return next week, to remain until the opening of the University in the fall.

Girls' Volunteer Band Washington Orchestra, July 3

The Girls' Volunteer Band of Staunton, Ohio, will give a patriotic program at the M. E. church, Monday evening, July 3. Music will be furnished by the Washington Sunday School Orchestra. One special feature of the evening is a Cantata—"The Contest of the Nations"—introduces the Goddess of Liberty and 12 nations, which compete for the laurel crown. Will begin promptly at 7 o'clock. Admission free. Everybody invited.

An ice cream social on the parsonage lawn will be given by the young ladies' Sunday school class, proceeds for benefit of church.

Price's Band Here the 4th

Negotiations were completed this morning with the Price's band of Greenfield, to give two concerts in Washington on the Fourth of July. The music committee of the Y. M. C. A. composed of J. T. Tuttle and C. E. Lloyd have announced that the concert in the afternoon will be given from 3:30 to 4:30 and the one in the evening preceding the fire works. Both will be open air concerts so that all may enjoy the splendid music.

The Committee on Finances with Henry Brownell, chairman, have begun raising funds. The public generally is urged to contribute liberally. Those who are planning to shoot a few fireworks at home are asked to join in the big fund, so that there may be one big demonstration, under expert supervision, and the public can all enjoy. This will reduce accidents to a minimum, and there will be no commotion here and there by the shooting of a few rockets, or crackers going off. Let us keep in mind the fireworks display of the "home-coming" and make this second to it.

All persons having tents and willing to loan them to the committee for use over the 4th, are requested to notify Ray F. Zaner.

The Scouts of the various troops, who are planning to go in camp, will meet at the Presbyterian church Friday night at 7 o'clock.

Up in the air, so trim and taut.
He called the summer sky:
The breeze was cool and pleasant there—
He saw the birds go by.

But something snapped—we don't know what—
The cry was, "Coming down!"
He landed where the sod was soft.
Yet almost cracked his crown.

Some said, "A faulty steering gear."
Some said, "A broken plane."
But all he knew was everywhere
His body throbbed with pain.

The little birds were sailing still,
As gaily as you please
Across the green and grassy lawn
And high above the trees.

They laughed to see the poor bird-man
In such a doleful plight,
And nearly every one of them
Opined, "It served him right!"

CHINA IS AWAKE.

"China will have to look to other markets, probably India, for its flour supplies in the future, if the price of American flour remains above $3.40 a barrel after the next harvest," declared Kwan Kai of Hong Kong, called "the flour king of China." Mr. Kai said he is on a prospecting tour over the Pacific slope country, adding that because of the failure in many parts of the Chinese empire of the rice crop and prospects for cheaper wheat in the Northwestern and Pacific states he believes the exports of grain to China the next 12 months will be larger than ever. After visiting various parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, Mr. Kai announced his intention to make a tour of the United States at the instance of the Vice-roy of Canton to inquire into the American library system. The visitor was a resident of San Francisco from 1870 to 1891, when he returned to his native land.

China's awakening, though long delayed, is surely at hand and the way that nation is looking about in matters of commerce and matters pertaining to the war and navy departments reminds one of the stretching and yawning of a big overgrown child after a particularly long nap.

The wonder at the strangeness of all the wonderful things which have been going on in the world while China has enjoyed her sleep of several centuries is clearly seen through the slant eyes of the Orientals.

They are just realizing what this world outside of China is and the little brothers over in Japan are the ones who are waking the giant up.

China will, err many years roll round, be ready to furnish the army of the Mikado all the soldiers needed, to not only defend his empire but, if necessary, to maintain aggressive campaigns to enlarge the power of the yellow men.

While Japan has been and is now sending emissaries to all parts of the world to tell of her poverty in men and money she has been poking China in the ribs and finally with the bright sun of an advanced civilization shining full in his upturned face, the giant is "waking up."

FOR THE COMMON GOOD.

Adequate protection for employer and employe, increased safety of industrial operations, sure and certain relief for workers injured at hazardous occupations and their families, elimination of litigation and regulation by state police powers of dangerous trades, are some of the advantages claimed for the workman's compensation act, which will become effective in Washington on the first day of next October.

The theory of the act, which was adopted by the last legislature, is stated in these words:

"The welfare of the state depends on its industries and even more upon the welfare of its wage-earners."

All factories, mills and workshops where machinery is used, come under the act, as also do foundries, quarries, mines, smelters, powder works, breweries, elevators, docks, dredges, laundries, printing, engineering, logging, lumbering, shipbuilding, railroad and general building operations, street and interurban railroads, electrical, power and heating plants and steamboats.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars has been appropriated by the state to bear the expense of administering the law, and the governor has appointed a commission to have full charge of the industrial insurance work, including the collection of premiums and the adjustment and settlement of claims. The commission has power to create new classes and establish new rates.

Where a workman is injured because the employer has neglected to observe the safeguards required by law or by the regulations of the department, the employer must pay 50 per cent. more than the fixed amounts.

POETRY
FOR TODAY

AN IDEALIST.

In his young boyhood God unto him sent
An angel, one who, bearing from His skies
Immortal gladness, breathed it on his eyes,
And laid upon his lips a sacrament:
Saying, "Behold, O child, to thee I give
That which nor Time nor Fear shall make its spoil.
The gift of Love to hearten all thy toil,
Of Beauty to be thine while thou dost live."

And since that day, though fifty years have sped,
Though Care full oft hath been his hand-maiden,
And on his path Pain's driving hurricane
Pale wreckage of his morning hopes hath spread.
Yet still with brow uplifted to the sun,
And mouth whereon an old love-song net sleeps,
His Golden Vision all undimmed he keeps,
And dreams of purple heights yet to be won.

Still with that morning wonder in his eyes,
Through teeming thoroughfare and crowded mart,
He goes with unscathed soul and gladsome heart,
Wise even as a little child is wise.

SAYS THE OWL

The fool's money has other affinities.

He that gives freely expects but little in return.

Often a handsome man can make a living despite it.

To the fat lady life should be anything but a dreary waist.

It takes more than a daily bath to keep a man's record clean.

The best of men are sometimes worsted—and that's no idle yarn.

A close student of human nature seldom lends money to his friends.

Do You Read
the Dictionary?

WHAT is the use of a dictionary to you?

Perhaps a good deal of use; perhaps none. It depends on you.

But let us see about it.

The action you perform most, the commonest thing you do, is to use words. They are talk-words and reading words. But, with one or the other, you are concerned all day long and every day. Even the vow of silence cannot keep a man from thinking words, for words are the very symbols of our thought-action, and we are constantly translating the objects and conditions of the present, past, and future into them.

In a famous essay on books, the American philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, said, "A dictionary is not bad reading." And it is not bad reading; it is decidedly good reading.

Dictionaries, like people, are some big and some little. But, big or little, they have one purpose. That purpose is supposed to be this: to give the meaning of words. But that is not it exactly. The purpose of a dictionary is to show us pictures—the pictures of images locked up in words.

Therefore, the right knowledge of words stores the mind with pictures as bright as any you can see in a moving picture show.

Let us see if this is so.

You are reading this article in what is called a paper. Now the word paper happens to be one that is full of picture meaning. Paper is the modern form of the word papyrus, and papyrus is the name of a rush-like plant from which the Egyptians made the material on which they wrote.

The word paper, this thing you hold in your hand, suggests book. The word book also has a history. It comes from bok, meaning a beech tree; and again, because the ancient Saxons and Germans used to write runes on white boards made of beech-wood.

Again, these words, beech-boards suggest the word "board" as we use it in relation to boarding-out, or taking table-board at five dollars per week.

Why is it called "board?"

The humorous man says, because it is generally so tough and hard that nothing else can describe it.

He is wrong; or, at least, not exact.

The word board is the old word for table. The Norwegians still use it and for "the table" they say hordet.

Now the right use of the dictionary is to find this wonderful, historical picture in words, just as paper now means more to you than before: Paper—papyrus—a plant growing along the Nile; Egypt; Writing; Hieroglyphics.

Book—Beech-tree; German; Saxon; Beech-board; Runes.

Thus you see, to make paper from wood pulp is going to nature for it as man has gone from time immemorial.

And the wrong use of the dictionary is to take a hasty glance at the word, see if it means WHAT YOU THINK IT MEANS, and if it does, to let it go at that.

The use of a dictionary cheats you or all the marvelous pictures—and it resembles the way most men handle a gun. The gun goes off before they know it is loaded, and hurts the man.

By getting ALL ITS MEANINGS he sets straight for him thought-action which we have said above, is the commonest one he performs—namely to talk.

Now any kind of rags will clothe a man. But most of you want something better than rags—cleanliness, style and a good impression.

So any kind of a language will enable a man to stammer and stutter what he has to say—but the habit of looking in a dictionary occasionally will clothe his speech in a cleanly way, give it force (which is the style of speech), and create a good impression.

What is the use of a dictionary to you?

As to the Cook.

"Does your cook wear your gowns?"

"No. Why, she wouldn't even patronize my dressmaker."

Grown Cautious.

"Why don't you ever brag no more about the cold winters you've known, Jabez?"

"I got to looking over a file of weather reports, and they proved by figures that every winter averages about the same."

During the Honeymoon.

"Hubby, I want to wear my thin shoes in the rain."

"Well, dovey?"

"Tell me I mustn't."

The Volunteer Host.

"He's a host in himself."

"You mean one of these fellows who does all the honors at the party you're paying for?"

A Judicial Error.

The Judge soliloquized:

"I could have married Maud Muller with wheat at $1.25," he cried.

Herewith he went out and kicked himself.—New York Sun.

Ahead of the Game.

Byker—"I attended a successful sleight-of-hand performance last night."

Fyker—"So?"

Byker—"Yes, I lent the conjurer a counterfeit dollar and he gave me back a good one."

Hometown
Helps

There is probably no place where a garden is more appreciated by the public than at a railway station. Folks when out traveling have their eyes with them; they are open to all kinds of impression, and such as at home would in passing be barely noticed and even remain entirely unobserved, if met on travels, are welcomed with an interest highly profitable. The beautiful has added beauty; the partly hidden and insignificant becomes obvious; the eye searches greedily for new impressions, when we are out a-traveling.

This, then, is probably the fundamental reason for the railroad gardens. Culture has been given to otherwise ugly situations; trees have been planted along right-of-way fences; vacant spots have been transformed from barren cinders into beautiful spots of lawns and flowers; hot platforms and sidewalks have had the spotted shadows of trees thrown over them; the cheerless has been transformed into jubilant symphonies of colors and cool shadows, inviting, indeed, when summer burns the traveler's back.

In large lawns such common shrubs as the snowball, the Persian lilac, and the Japanese quince, are excellent. Besides these there are the mock orange, the golden bell, the spiraea vanhouten, and the pearl bush. The dogwoods and evergreens work in well in the decoration of a large lawn.

Of course these are not all that are needed for a beautiful lawn, for in fact the important thing is a thick, well-kept grass sod, the carpet, if you please, upon which to set the scenery. The cannas, hollyhocks, coleus and geraniums are necessary, but should be used only as borders, or some of them in porch boxes. Rose-bushes are often desired, and the harder varieties should be obtained and placed together in rows or beds, as single rosebushes soon grow to limbs and appear unsightly.

Our Grocery Clerk
Says, Still In Bad

Yep, I'm in bad with the boo'ful but cold cashier, and the harder I try to make a hit the swifter I get it where the chicken got the tomahawk.

I scraped up a brilliant idea yesterday, or thought I did. You know the telephone is right by Juliet's desk, so when anybody talks on it she can't help overhearing everything that is said. I got my brother-in-law to call me up yesterday afternoon, and then I poured a line of talk into the transmitter that ran something like this:

"No, awful sorry, Geraldine, but I can't accept your invitation tonight. I just love box parties, too, but I promised Gladys I'd take her to that swell dance tonight. How's Kate and Dot and Gracie? Give 'em my love, won't you?"

Figuring, of course, that if I could get Juliet a little jealous, it might work wonders. But—

"Geraldine has an awful mannish voice," Juliet says out loud to herself, sort of.

The confounded operator had given me one of those perfect connections where everybody in the place can hear the voice on the other end of the wire. And brother-in-law has a voice like a fog horn. Who is huh!

CHIEF MOORE'S
SENSE OF HUMOR.

Couldn't Promise Fair Weather
to a Fair Inquirer.

Willis L. Moore, the man who invented the flareback in meteorology and who is popularly supposed to manufacture the weather for the entire country, was once a journeyman printer and worked on the Burlington Hawkeye. He likes to talk about his printer days. Incidentally it has been charged that the weather man has no sense of humor. This should, however, be taken with some allowance in view of the following incident:

A society woman wrote to Moore asking him to be good enough to assure her of pleasant weather on a certain date when she contemplated giving a reception. Moore took a long gaze into his crystal or whatever he consults when he wants to know the forecast, and then he wrote to his correspondent as follows:

Dear Madam—I deeply regret that I shall have to disappoint you as to the kind of weather that will prevail here the day of your reception. I find that I have already promised rain that day for a washday who desires some soft water with which to do her washing.

Apropos, one of the weather sharps in the Washington office, nettled at some verbal encounter with his chief, confided to his office mate that undoubtedly if he could write it Willis L. Moore's epitaph would read, "Unsettled and warmer."

Delightfully Situated.

Jeremy Sanderson, the well known sociologist of Duluth, was condemning the international marriage.

"These foreigners that take our girls," said Mr. Sanderson bitterly, "are well off—well off, I mean, in the Calhoun use of the term."

"H. Clay Calhoun, testifying in a case in court, spoke of one Washington White as 'well off.'"

"Now, witness," said the cross-examining lawyer, "when you declare White to be well off what do you mean? Is he worth $10,000?"

"No, sah; oh, no, sah," said Calhoun.

"Is he worth $5,000?"

"No, sah. Mah gracious, no."

"Is he worth $1,000?"

"No, sah; he ain't wurf 17 cents."

"Then how is he well off?"

"Bekase, sah, his wife am a No. 1 washday and keeps de hull family in bangup style."

208.—We are told that Adam and Eve by committing sin brought all the trouble in the world. Why, then, did not God make them so they could not sin?

Answer.—Because he did not choose to do so. He left it for man to make machines. God exercised His creative power on a higher and nobler plane, because he desires the love and worship of creatures who intelligently render worship in spirit and in truth. Therefore, the necessity of making man a free moral agent and permitting him to choose to obey God and receive the blessings of eternal life, or disobey God and receive the recompense therefor. God has a great Plan, which He is working out to his own pleasure, and the outworkings of which are teaching all of His intelligent creatures that the willingly obedient shall live and the willingly disobedient shall die. "The Lord preserveth all them that love him; but all the wicked will he destroy" Psalm cxlv, 20). In order to prove that he loves God supremely man must be given the privilege of doing right or wrong. In His due time God purposes to give to all men one fair trial under righteous conditions that each may prove his willingness to obey the Lord and live (Acts iii, 22, 23; xvii, 31).

Mrs. Ortie McManigal Fails Efforts of Prosecution

In Los Angeles Times Explosion
Case Now Before Grand Jury.

MEETS HUSBAND IN CORRIDOR

Sudden Encounter and Tears of Self-
Confessed Dynamiter Fail to Break
Determination to Hold Tongue and
Not Confirm Ortie's Confession.
Swoons After Trying Ordeal, but Proudly Informs Attorney Clarence
Darrow That She "Stood Pat."

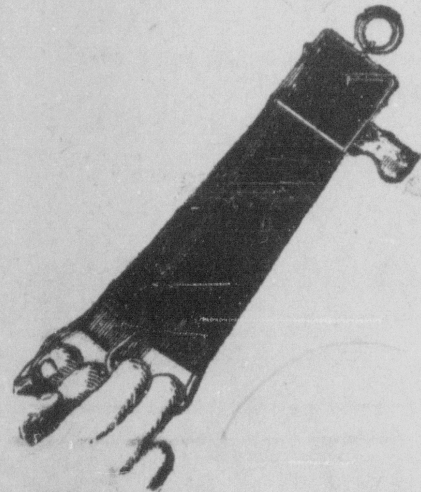

Los Angeles, Cal., June 28.—With
tears streaming down his cheeks, Ortie McManigal, confessed dynam-iter, and informer against John J.
McNamara and his brother, J. B. Mc-Namara, was led back to his cell
in the county jail, while a physician worked over his wife, who had swooned during an ordeal to which she was subjected in an anteroom
near the grand jury.

The tears of McManigal and the collapse of his wife were the sequel of an unexpected meeting in the anteroom—unexpected so far as they were concerned, but fully planned by the prosecution to thwart the scheme of the defense to win over McMani-gal through the pleas of his wife.
McManigal was taken to this anteroom without the knowledge of the defense and when Mrs. McManigal was called it was supposed she was to go before the grand jury. Instead
she was taken into the anteroom.
There began a bombardment of questions, McManigal adding his appeal that Mrs. McManigal tell everything to those made by the detectives, but
Mrs. McManigal would say nothing.

Doctor Hurriedly Summoned.

When she swooned Dr. Lowell was hastily called and worked over her some time before she revived. As she staggered out of the room she almost fell into the arms of Attorney
Clarence Darrow, exclaiming weakly,
"I stood pat." The defense is angry
over the incident, alleging the prosecution subjected Mrs. McManigal to
"third degree" methods of the worst kind. The prosecution answers that its sole purpose was to obtain admissions from Mrs. McManigal that the story her husband has related is true.

Apparently the progress made by the defense toward getting McMani-gal into a mood to repudiate his confession was offset, for it is asserted
by the prosecution that he went to the anteroom where his wife met him affirming his statements were true and seeking corroboration on her part of happenings within her knowledge. Mrs. McManigal was before the jury prior to the scene in the anteroom, but admitted nothing.

Borah Yields Floor To Storm

Western Senator Vanquished by Electrical Storm.

Washington, June 28.—For the first time within the memory of capitol attaches, the senate was adjourned
by a violent electrical storm with a terrible downpour of rain and hailstones. Senator Borah of Idaho was addressing the senate when the storm broke. "He found himself unable to proceed because of the confusion outside. After he had attempted several times to continue his remarks, Senator Gallinger moved an adjournment."

Senator Borah was speaking on the reciprocity bill. Early in the day
Senator Townsend of Michigan addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. When the senate met Senator Penrose came forward with a proposed agreement for a vote on Canadian reciprocity on July 24, to be followed within a few days by a vote on the farmers' free list bill and the wool bill on definite dates. There was considerable discussion, but finally Senator LaFollette objected to the date for the Canadian bill and Senator Smoot objected to fixing a day for a vote on the farmers' free
list and the wool bill.

Tells of Lad's Death.

Martine Perry, O., June 28.—Two boys confessed to being with Dominic
Appeno, 11, when he was drowned.
Terror kept them from telling until the boys' widowed mother coaxed
them.

Saved From Death Miraculously

Chicago, June 28.—Patrick Eustice, iron worker, fell from the twentieth story of the Heyen building, and but for the prompt action of John Murray, working on the nineteenth floor,
would have been crushed to death.
Murray seized his falling companion
by the coat as he passed downward and threw him into the shaft opening on the eighteenth floor, where Eustice landed across a beam. He was slightly injured, but within a few minutes was back at work.

Auto Wrecked; Four Hurt.

Zanesville, O., June 28.—Four men were seriously injured in an automobile accident and one of them may die. Frank Ransbottom, Republican congressional committeeman of the Fifteenth district, suffered a broken right arm and severe bruises. Henry Buerhaus, county auditor, had two ribs broken and his head cut. John Kennedy, Roseville, suffered two broken ribs and was hurt internally.
William Eberdorf, Roseville, sustained
a fractured skull and internal injuries, and his condition is very critical. Kennedy's condition is serious.

Admits Improper Relations.

Denver, June 28.—Practically admitting that his relations with Mrs.
John W. Springer were improper and that jealousy, instead of chivalry, was his chief motive in quarreling with Von Puhl, Frank H. Henwood underwent a merciless grilling from the prosecution.

Toga-making Specialty Followed by Hines Helped Elect Others, Too

Washington, June 28.—That Edward Hines, alleged solicitor of the Lor-mer "slush fund," was a senator-maker in Wisconsin as well as Illinois and had declared he was responsible for the election of Senator Stephenson, was sworn to by W. A. Cook, a Duluth (Minn.) lumberman, at the hearing of the senate investigating committee. Cook testified he had known Hines for 10 years.

"Somewhere about May 1, 1909,"
he said, "I was talking in the office

The Mormon Patriarch Talks With Fair Sex Swarm to Trust Hearing

Washington, June 28.—The venerable prophet-president of the Church
of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,
Joseph F. Smith, was the principal witness at the hearing of the Hardwick sugar investigating committee. His presence attracted a larger crowd than had been seen in
the committee room since the inquiry began. Many women were present.
They eyed the prophet curiously as he entered the committee room and crowded closely around him as he told the story of the relations of the Mormon church with the sugar trust.

Prophet Joseph Smith is 73 years old. He is tall, spare of figure, has keen blue eyes and, like the prophets of old, wears a beard that falls toward the waistline. He stepped briskly into the committee room and when called to the stand responded with a smile.

The first president proved a good witness. He expressed surprise when members of the committee gave the impression that the Mormon church was rolling in wealth, declaring that this was a mistaken notion; that they and had been in financial straits on several occasions and had had to borrow. The prophet objected to having H. O. Havemeyer characterized as "an industrial pirate," declaring that, on the contrary, he had been a "benefactor" to the Mormons.

COAL RATES SLASHED

Hocking Valley Road Gets Orders
From Commission.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Rates of coal transportation from the Hocking Valley district were ordered reduced from 5 to 25 cents per ton by the state railroad commission in the suit brought by the New York Coal company against the Hocking Valley railway. The rates cover shipments between Nelsonville, O., and Toledo, O.,
and intermediate points.

Ross Trial Begins.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Presentation of the case by attorneys in the charge against James Ross, former sheriff of Franklin county, who is accused in criminal court with giving merchandise to former County Commissioner J. D. Gillespie of Marion county, to influence him in the purchase of public supplies, was followed by the beginning of the examination of witnesses for the state. There are but few witnesses on either side
and it is expected that the case will be completed by tomorrow at the latest. James Ross, the defendant, was for two years head of the Ruggles-Gale company, dealers in printed office supplies.

Bandit Squeals on Pals.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Three youthful bandits, ranging from 15 to 18 years, committed daring robberies
at Plain City, 18 miles west of here,
and engaged in a hot running fight with a night watchman. The youngest of the trio was captured, and gave his name as Ernest Davis of Milo, a suburb of Columbus. He gave his age as 15 and said the other members of the gang were Red Morgan and Chester Tobin, also of Milo, both aged 18.

Auto Thief Easy Victim.

Zanesville, O., June 28.—As Mrs.
Cal Bradford entered her garage she saw a man grab an auto tire and dart up an alley. Quickly cranking her machine, she pursued him. Jumping from the auto as she overtook him, she forced him to get into the machine and drove him to the police station. He said that he was Sherd Bell of Cleveland, and that he had been robbing many automobiles here.

Must Serve His Sentence.

Columbus, O., June 28.—The supreme court refused the right for counsel to file a petition in error in behalf of Montella Watha, now serving 20 years in the penitentiary for manslaughter in connection with the lynching of Carl Etherington, dry detective, in Newark last summer. The decision means that Watha must serve his sentence.

HENRY F. WISE

Turns His Attention to Gigantic Magazine Trust.

Papers Filed Against Magazine Trust

Goes After Men Back of Periodical
Trust.

New York, June 28.—District Attorney Henry A. Wise, acting under instructions from Attorney General
Wickersham, filed papers in a dissolution suit in the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York, the defendants being the periodical clearing house
and others, known as the magazine
trust.

The defendants are, in addition to the periodical clearing house, the following: Doubleday, Page & Company, Cromwell Publishing company,
S. S. McClure company, Current Literature Publishing company, Phillips Publishing company, Harper & Brothers, Leslie-Judge company, Review of Reviews company, and International
Magazine company.

That criminal action may be brought against the various defendants is shown by the request that they be required to answer the government complaint, "but not under oath."

Now Comes Wallpaper Trust.

Cleveland, O., June 28.—The government by the United States department of the alleged wallpaper trust was here when a federal grand jury was summoned especially for that purpose. Witnesses have been summoned from Cleveland, Omaha, Calcago, Philadelphia, New York and Hoboken, N. J., and it is declared the investigation will be one of the most complete trust-busting probes the government has yet conducted.

Domestic Troubles Multitry.

Cleveland, O., June 28.—Suit for divorce filed by the husband against his young wife, the issuing of a court order forbidding the husband to take his infant boy out of the state, and the arrest of the husband's mother, followed in rapid succession as a sequel to the sensational disappearance of the baby boy of Mr. and Mrs.
Harry R. Butler from their home,
1610 East One Hundred and Fifth street. The boy is believed to be in Columbus, the former home of Mr.
Butler.

CHINA IS AWAKE.

"China will have to look to other markets, probably India, for its flour supplies in the future, if the price of American flour remains above $3.40 a barrel after the next harvest," declared Kwan Kai of Hong Kong, called "the flour king of China." Mr. Kai said he is on a prospecting tour over the Pacific slope country, adding that because of the failure in many parts of the Chinese empire of the rice crop and prospects for cheaper wheat in the Northwestern and Pacific states he believes the exports of grain to China the next 12 months will be larger than ever. After visiting various parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, Mr. Kai announced his intention to make a tour of the United States at the instance of the Viceroy of Canton to inquire into the American library system. The visitor was a resident of San Francisco from 1870 to 1891, when he returned to his native land.

China's awakening, though long delayed, is surely at hand and the way that nation is looking about in matters of commerce and matters pertaining to the war and navy departments reminds one of the stretching and yawning of a big overgrown child after a particularly long nap.

The wonder at the strangeness of all the wonderful things which have been going on in the world while China has enjoyed her sleep of several centuries is clearly seen through the slant eyes of the Orientals.

They are just realizing what this world outside of China is and the little brothers over in Japan are the ones who are waking the giant up.

China will, in many years roll round, be ready to furnish the army of the Mikado all the soldiers needed, to not only defend his empire but, if necessary, to maintain aggressive campaigns to enlarge the power of the yellow men.

While Japan has been and is now sending emissaries to all parts of the world to tell of her poverty in men and money she has been poking China in the ribs and finally with the bright sun of an advanced civilization shining full in his upturned face, the giant is "waking up."

FOR THE COMMON GOOD.

Adequate protection for employer and employee, increased safety of industrial operations, sure and certain relief for workers injured at hazardous occupations and their families, elimination of litigation and regulation by state police powers of dangerous trades, are some of the advantages claimed for the workman's compensation act, which will become effective in Washington on the first day of next October.

The theory of the act, which was adopted by the last legislature, is stated in these words:

"The welfare of the state depends on its industries and even more upon the welfare of its wage-earners."

All factories, mills and workshops where machinery is used, come under the act, as also do foundries, quarries, mines, smelters, powder works, breweries, elevators, docks, dredges, laundries, printing, engineering, logging, lumbering, shipbuilding, railroad and general building operations, street and interurban railroads, electrical, power and heating plants and steamboats.

One hundred and fifty thousand dollars has been appropriated by the state to bear the expense of administering the law, and the governor has appointed a commission to have full charge of the industrial insurance work, including the collection of premiums and the adjustment and settlement of claims. The commission has power to create new classes and establish new rates.

Where a workman is injured because the employer has neglected to observe the safeguards required by law or by the regulations of the department, the employer must pay 50 per cent. more than the fixed amounts.

POETRY
FOR TODAY

AN IDEALIST.

In his young boyhood God unto him sent
An angel, one who, bearing from His skies
Immortal gladness, breathed it on his eyes,
And laid upon his lips a sacrament:
Saying, "Behold, O child, to thee I give
That which nor Time nor Fear shall make its spoil.
The gift of Love to heaven all thy toil,
Of Beauty to be thine while thou dost live."

And since that day, though fifty years have sped,
Though Care full oft hath been his hand-maiden,
And on his path Pain's driving hurricane
Pale wreckage of his morning hopes hath spread.
Yet still with brow uplifted to the sun,
And mouth whereon an old love-song net sleeps,
His Golden Vision all undimmed he keeps,
And dreams of purple heights yet to be won.

Still with that morning wonder in his eyes,
Through teeming thoroughfare and crowded mart,
He goes with unscathed soul and gladsome heart,
Wise even as a little child is wise.

SAYS THE OWL

The fool's money has other affinities.

He that gives freely expects but little in return.

Often a handsome man can make a living despite it.

To the fat lady life should be anything but a dreary waist.

The best of men are sometimes worsted—and that's no idle yarn.

A close student of human nature seldom lends money to his friends.

Do You Read
the Dictionary?

WHAT is the use of a dictionary to you?

Perhaps a good deal of use; perhaps none. It depends on you.

But let us see about it. The action you perform most, the commonest thing you do, is to use words. They are talk-words and reading words. But, with one or the other, you are concerned all day long and every day. Even the vow of silence cannot keep a man from thinking words, for words are the very symbols of our thought-action, and we are constantly translating the objects and conditions of the present, past, and future into them.

In a famous essay on books, the American philosopher, Ralph Waldo Emerson, said, "A dictionary is not bad reading." And it is not bad reading; it is decidedly good reading.

Dictionaries, like people, are some big and some little. But, big or little, they have one purpose. That purpose is supposed to be this: to give the meaning of words. But that is not it exactly. The purpose of a dictionary is to show us pictures—the pictures of images locked up in words. Therefore, the right knowledge of words stores the mind with pictures as bright as any you can see in a moving picture show.

Let us see if this is so. You are reading this article in what is called a paper. Now the word paper happens to be one that is full of picture meaning. Paper is the modern form of the word papyrus, and papyrus is the name of a rush-like plant from which the Egyptians made the material on which they wrote. The word paper, this thing you hold in your hand, suggests book. The word book also has a history. It comes from bok, meaning a beech tree; and again, because the ancient Saxons and Germans used to write runes on white boards made of beech-wood.

Again, these words, beech-boards suggest the word "board" as we use it in relation to boarding-out, or taking table-board at five dollars per week.

Why is it called "board?"

The humorous man says, because it is generally so tough and hard that nothing else can describe it.

He is wrong; or, at least, not exact.

The word board is the old word for table. The Norwegians still use it and for "the table" they say borde.

Now the right use of the dictionary is to find this wonderful, historical picture in words, just as paper now means more to you than before: Paper—papyrus—a plant growing along the Nile; Egypt: Writing: Hieroglyphics.

Book—Beech-tree: German: Saxon: Beech-board: Runes.

Thus you see, to make paper from wood pulp is going to nature for it as man has gone from time immemorial.

And the wrong use of the dictionary is to take a hasty glance at the word, see if it means WHAT YOU THINK IT MEANS, and if it does, to let it go at that.

The use of a dictionary cheats you or all the marvelous pictures—and it resembles the way most men handle a gun. The gun goes off before they know it is loaded, and hurts the man. By getting ALL ITS MEANINGS it sets straight for him thought-action which we have said above, is the commonest one he performs—namely to talk.

Now any kind of rags will clothe a man. But most of you want something better than rags—cleanliness, style and a good impression.

So any kind of a language will enable a man to stammer and stutter what he has to say—but the habit of looking in a dictionary occasionally will clothe his speech in a cleanly way, give it force (which is the style of speech), and create a good impression.

What is the use of a dictionary to you?

As to the Cook.

"Does your cook wear your gowns?"

"No. Why, she wouldn't even patronize my dressmaker."

Grown Cautious.

"Why don't you ever brag no more about the cold winters you've known, Jabez?"

"I got to looking over a file of weather reports, and they proved by figures that every winter averages about the same."

During the Honeymoon.

"Hubby, I want to wear my thin shoes in the rain."

"Well, dovey?"

"Tell me I mustn't."

The Volunteer Host.

"He's a host in himself."

"You mean one of these fellows who does all the honors at the party you're paying for?"

A Judicial Error.

The Judge soliloquized:
"I could have married Maud Muller with wheat at $1.25," he cried.
Herewith he went out and kicked himself.—New York Sun.

Ahead of the Game.

Byker—"I attended a successful sleight-of-hand performance last night."

Pyker—"So?"

Byker—"Yes, I lent the conjurer a counterfeit dollar and he gave me back a good one."

Hometown
Helps

There is probably no place where a garden is more appreciated by the public than at a railway station. Folks when out traveling have their eyes with them; they are open to all kinds of impression, and such as at home would in passing be barely noticed and even remain entirely unobserved, if met on travels, are welcomed with an interest highly profitable. The beautiful has added beauty; the partly hidden and insignificant becomes obvious; the eye searches greedily for new impressions, when we are out traveling.

This, then, is probably the fundamental reason for the railroad gardens. Culture has been given to otherwise ugly situations; trees have been planted along right-of-way fences; vacant spots have been transformed from barren clinders into beauty spots of lawns and flowers; not platforms and sidewalks have had the spotted shadows of trees thrown over them; the cheerless has been transformed into jubilant symphonies of colors and cool shadows, inviting, indeed, when summer burns the traveler's back.

In large lawns such common shrubs as the snowball, the Persian lilac, and the Japanese quince, are excellent. Besides these there are the mock orange, the golden bell, the spiraea vanhouten, and the pearl bush. The dogwoods and evergreens work in well in the decoration of a large lawn.

Of course these are not all that are needed for a beautiful lawn, for in fact the important thing is a thick, well-kept grass sod, the carpet, if you please, upon which to set the scenery. The canna, hollyhocks, coleus and geraniums are necessary, but should be used only as borders, or some of them in porch boxes. Rose-bushes are often desired, and the hardier varieties should be obtained and placed together in rows or beds, as single rosebushes soon grow to limbs and appear unsightly.

Our Grocery Clerk

Says, Still In Bad

Yep, I'm in bad with the bookful but cold cashier, and the harder I try to make a hit the swifter I get it where the chicken got the tomahawk.

I scraped up a brilliant idea yesterday, or thought I did. You know the telephone is right by Juliet's desk, so when anybody talks on it she can't help overhearing everything that is said. I got my brother-in-law to call me up yesterday afternoon, and then I poured a line of talk into the transmitter that ran something like this:

"No, awful sorry, Geraldine, but I can't accept your invitation tonight. I just love box parties, too, but I promised Gladys I'd take her to that swell dance tonight. How's Kate and Dot and Gracie? Give 'em my love, won't you?"

Figuring, of course, that if I could get Juliet a little jealous, it might work wonders. But—

"Geraldine has an awful mannish voice," Juliet says out loud to herself, sort of.

The confounded operator had given me one of those perfect connections where everybody in the place can hear the voice on the other end of the wire. And brother-in-law has a voice like a fog horn. Woe is mine!

EVERYBODY'S BIBLE QUESTION BOX

YOUR BIBLE QUESTIONS WILL BE ANSWERED IN THESE COLUMNS, OR BY MAIL IF SENT TO THE EDITOR OF THIS JOURNAL.

208.—We are told that Adam and Eve by committing sin brought all the trouble in the world. Why, then, did not God make them so they could not sin?

Answer.—Because he did not choose to do so. He left it for man to make machines. God exercised His creative power on a higher and nobler plane, because he desires the love and worship of creatures who intelligently render worship in spirit and in truth. Therefore, the necessity of making man a free moral agent and permitting him to choose to obey God and receive the blessings of eternal life, or disobey God and receive the recompense therefor. God has a great Plan, which He is working out to his own pleasure, and the outworkings of which are teaching all of His intelligent creatures that the willingly obedient shall live and the willingly disobedient shall die. "The Lord preserveth all them that love him; but all the wicked will he destroy" (Psalm cxlv, 20). In order to prove that he loves God supremely man must be given the privilege of doing right or wrong. In His due time God purposes to give to all men one fair trial under righteous conditions that each may prove his willingness to obey the Lord and live (Acts iii, 22, 23; xvii, 31).

SENSE OF HUMOR.

Couldn't Promise Fair Weather to a Fair Inquirer.

Willis L. Moore, the man who invented the farehack in meteorology and who is popularly supposed to manufacture the weather for the entire country, was once a journeyman printer and worked on the Burlington Hawkeye. He likes to talk about his printer days. Incidentally it has been charged that the weather man has no sense of humor. This should, however, be taken with some allowance in view of the following incident:

A society woman wrote to Moore asking him to be good enough to assure her of pleasant weather on a certain date when she contemplated giving a reception. Moore took a long gaze into his crystal or whatever he consults when he wants to know the forecast, and then he wrote to his correspondent as follows:

Dear Madam—I deeply regret that I shall have to disappoint you as to the kind of weather that will prevail here the day of your reception. I find that I have already promised rain that day for a washday who desires some soft water with which to do her washing.

Apropos, one of the weather sharps in the Washington office, nettled at some verbal encounter with his chief, confided to his office mate that undoubtedly if he could write it Willis L. Moore's epitaph would read, "Unsettled and warmer."

Delightfully Situated.

Jeremy Sanderson, the well known sociologist of Duluth, was condemning the international marriage.

"Those foreigners that take our girls," said Mr. Sanderson bitterly, "are well off—well off, I mean, in the Calhoun use of the term."

"H. Clay Calhoun, testifying in a case in court, spoke of one Washington White as 'well off.'"

"Now, witness," said the cross-examining lawyer, "when you declare White to be well off what do you mean? Is he worth $10,000?"

"No, sah; oh, no, sah," said Calhoun.

"Is he worth $5,000?"

"No, sah. Mah gracious, no."

"Is he worth $1,000?"

"No, sah; he ain't wurf 17 cents."

"Then how is he well off?"

"Bekase, sah, his wife am a No. 1 washday and keeps de hull family in bangup style."

THIRD Degree Given to the Wo- man

Mrs. Ortie McManigal Fails Efforts of Prosecution

In Los Angeles Times Explosion
Case Now Before Grand Jury.

MEETS HUSBAND IN CORRIDOR

Sudden Encounter and Tears of Self-
Confessed Dynamiter Fail to Break
Determination to Hold Tongue and
Not Confirm Ortie's Confession.
Swoons After Trying Ordeal, but
Proudly Informs Attorney Clarence
Darrow That She "Stood Pat."

Los Angeles, Cal., June 28.—With
tears streaming down his cheeks, Ortie McManigal, confessed dynamiter, and informer against John J.
McNamara and his brother, J. B. Mc-Namara, was led back to his cell
in the county jail, while a physician
worked over his wife, who had swooned during an ordeal to which
she was subjected in an anteroom
near the grand jury.

The tears of McManigal and the collapse of his wife were the sequel of an unexpected meeting in the an-teroom—unexpected so far as they were concerned, but fully planned by
the prosecution to thwart the scheme of the defense to win over McManigal through the pleas of his wife.
McManigal was taken to the anteroom without the knowledge of the defense and when Mrs. McManigal
was called it was supposed she was to go before the grand jury. Instead
she was taken into the anteroom.
There began a bombardment of questions, McManigal adding his appeal
that Mrs. McManigal tell everything
to those made by the detectives, but
Mrs. McManigal would say nothing.

Doctor Hurriedly Summoned.

When she swooned Dr. Lowell was hastily called and worked over her
some time before she revived. As she staggered out of the room she almost fell into the arms of Attorney
Clarence Darrow, exclaiming weakly,
"I stood pat." The defense is angry
over the incident, alleging the prosecution subjected Mrs. McManigal to
"third degree" methods of the worst kind. The prosecution answers that its sole purpose was to obtain admissions from Mrs. McManigal that the story her husband has related is true.

Apparently the progress made by the defense toward getting McManigal into a mood to repudiate his confession was offset, for it is asserted
by the prosecution that he went to the anteroom where his wife met
him affirming his statements were true and seeking corroboration on
her part of happenings within her knowledge. Mrs. McManigal was before the jury prior to the scene in the anteroom, but admitted nothing.

Borah Yields Floor To Storm

Western Senator Vanquished by Electrical Storm.

Washington, June 28.—For the first
time within the memory of capitol
attaches, the senate was adjourned
by a violent electrical storm with a terrific downpour of rain and hailstones. Senator Borah of Idaho was addressing the senate when the storm broke. "He found himself unable to proceed because of the confusion outside. After he had attempted several times to continue his remarks, Senator Gallinger moved an adjournment.

Senator Borah was speaking on the reciprocity bill. Early in the day
Senator Townsend of Michigan addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. When the senate met Senator Penrose came forward with a proposed agreement for a vote on Canadian reciprocity on July 24, to be followed within a few days by a vote on the farmers' free list bill and
the wool bill on definite dates. There was considerable discussion, but finally Senator LaFollette objected to the date for the Canadian bill and Senator Smoot objected to fixing a day for a vote on the farmers' free
list and the wool bill.

Tells of Lad's Death.

Martins Ferry, O., June 28.—Two
boys confessed to being with Dominic
Appeno, 11, when he was drowned.
Terror kept them from telling until
the boys' widowed mother coaxed
them.

Saved From Death Miraculously

Chicago, June 28.—Patrick Enstice, iron worker, fell from the twentieth story of the Heyen building, and but for the prompt action of John Murray, working on the nineteenth floor,
would have been crushed to death.
Murray seized his falling companion
by the coat as he passed downward
and threw him into the shaft opening
on the eighteenth floor, where Enstice landed across a beam. He was slightly injured, but within a few minutes was back at work.

Auto Wrecked; Four Hurt.

Zanesville, O., June 28.—Four men
were seriously injured in an automobile accident and one of them may
die. Frank Ransbottom, Republican congressional committeeman of the fifteenth district, suffered a broken
right arm and severe bruises. Henry Buerhaus, county auditor, had two ribs broken and his head cut. John Kennedy, Roseville, suffered two broken ribs and was hurt internally.
William Eberdorf, Roseville, sustained
a fractured skull and internal injuries, and his condition is very critical. Kennedy's condition is serious.

Admits Improper Relations.

Denver, June 28.—Practically admitting that his relations with Mrs.
John W. Springer were improper and that jealousy, instead of chivalry, was his chief motive in quarreling with Von Puhl, Frank H. Henwood underwent a merciless grilling from the prosecution.

The Mormon Patriarch Talks With Fair Sex Swarm to Trust Hearing

Washington, June 28.—The venerable prophet-president of the Church
of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints,
Joseph F. Smith, was the principal witness at the hearing of the Hardwick sugar investigating committee. His presence attracted a larger crowd than had been seen in
the committee room since the inquiry
began. Many women were present.
They eyed the prophet curiously as
he entered the committee room and
crowded closely around him as he told the story of the relations of the Mormon church with the sugar trust.

Prophet Joseph Smith is 73 years
old. He is tall, spare of figure, has keen blue eyes and, like the prophets of old, wears a beard that falls toward the waistline. He stepped briskly into the committee room and when called to the stand responded with a smile.

COAL RATES SLASHED

Hocking Valley Road Gets Orders
From Commission.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Rates of
coal transportation from the Hocking Valley district were ordered reduced from 5 to 25 cents per ton by the state railroad commission in the suit
brought by the New York Coal company against the Hocking Valley railway. The rates cover shipments between Nelsonville, O., and Toledo, O.,
and intermediate points.

Ross Trial Begins.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Presentation of the case by attorneys in the charge against James Ross, former sheriff of Franklin county, who is accused in criminal court with giving merchandise to former County Commissioner J. D. Gillespie of Marion county, to influence him in the purchase of public supplies, was followed by the beginning of the examination of witnesses for the state. There are but few witnesses on either side
and it is expected that the case will be completed by tomorrow at the lat-

Bandit Squeals on Pals.

Columbus, O., June 28.—Three
youthful bandits, ranging from 15 to 18 years, committed daring robberies
at Plain City, 18 miles west of here,
and engaged in a hot running fight
with a night watchman. The youngest of the trio was captured, and
gave his name as Ernest Davis of Milo, a suburb of Columbus. He gave his age as 15 and said the other members of the gang were Red Morgan
and Chester Tobin, also of Milo, both aged 18.

Auto Thief Easy Victim.

Zanesville, O., June 28.—As Mrs.
Cal Bradford entered her garage she saw a man grab an auto tire and dart up at J. J. J. Quickly cranking her machine, she pursued him. Jumping from the auto as she overtook
him, she forced him to get into the machine and drove him to the police station. He said that he was Sherd
Bell of Cleveland, and that he had been robbing many automobiles here.

Must Serve His Sentence.

Columbus, O., June 28.—The supreme court refused the right for counsel to file a petition in error in behalf of Montella Watha, now serving 20 years in the penitentiary for manslaughter in connection with the lynching of Carl Etherington, dry detective, in Newark last summer. The decision means that Watha must serve his sentence.

Papers Filed Against Magazine Trust

Goes After Men Back of Periodical
Trust.

New York, June 28.—District Attorney Henry A. Wise, acting under instructions from Attorney General
Wickersham, filed papers in a dissolution suit in the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York, the defendants
being the periodical clearing house
and others, known as the magazine
trust.

The defendants are, in addition to
the periodical clearing house, the following: Doubleday, Page & Company, Cromwell Publishing company,
S. S. McClure company, Current Literature Publishing company, Phillips
Publishing company, Harper & Brothers, Leslie-Judge company, Review of Reviews company, and International
Magazine company.

That criminal action may be brought against the various defendants is shown by the request that they be required to answer the government complaint, "but not under oath."

Now Comes Wallpaper Trust.

Cleveland, O., June 28.—The government by the United States department of the alleged wallpaper trust was today summoned to appear for the purpose. Witnesses have been summoned from Cleveland, Omaha, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and Hoboken, N. J., and it is declared the investigation will be one of the most complete trust-busting probes the government has yet conducted.

Domestic Troubles Multitry.

Cleveland, O., June 28.—Suit for divorce filed by the husband against his young wife, the issuing of a court order forbidding the husband to take his infant boy out of the state, and
the arrest of the husband's mother,
followed in rapid succession as a sequel to the sensational disappearance of the baby boy of Mr. and Mrs.
Harry R. Butler from their home,
1610 East One Hundred and Fifth street. The boy is believed to be in Columbus, the former home of Mr.
Butler.

Washington, June 28.—That Edward

maker in Wisconsin as well as Illinois
and had declared he was responsible for the election of Senator Stephen-

known Hines for 10 years.

he said, "I was talking in the office

Increase in Business At Hagerty Shoe Factory Necessitates More Room

The Old Factory Building on South Fayette Street Has Been Secured, and the Necessity for Establishing Branch in Nearby Town Has Been Obviated. Present Plant Will be Enlarged in Near Future.

Too much business and inadequate capacity has caused the P. Hagerty Shoe Factory to look about in search of more room and more employees, notwithstanding the capacity of the factory was nearly doubled eighteen months ago, and that 180 persons now find employment in the big factory in Millwood.

The work has grown to such proportions that it was found necessary to open up an addition to the factory immediately, and within the next ten days the old shoe factory opposite the Washington Milling Company plant on South Fayette street, will present a scene of activity, and forty to fifty more employees will be added bringing the total number employed up to about 225 persons, or more than double the number employed two years ago.

The second floor of the old factory is being equipped with machinery and will be known as a fitting room, where a great deal of the sewing is done. This old factory was vacated for larger quarters in 1905, and since that time the company has been going forward by leaps and bounds until the present time when business was never so flourishing, and the demand exceeds the capacity.

Opening the branch factory will give employment to many who object to the long walk to and from Millwood, and will enable the firm to meet the demands for the time being at least.

This is welcome news to Washington citizens, and will offer employment at good wages for many who have not worked in the factory heretofore.

The increase in capacity shows prosperity, and prosperity for our industries means prosperity for the city.

For some time it seemed that the company would be unable to solve the problem of securing more space in this city and so imperative was the demand for room that the establishment of a branch factory at Mt. Sterling, Sabina or some one of the nearby towns was seriously considered.

Everything possible has been done by the company to avoid going out of their home city with work and finally the arrangement was made which secured to the company the old factory building on Fayette street.

This, very much to the gratification of all our citizens solves the question for the time being until more room can be provided at the Millwood plant. The arrangement, it seems, in view of the constantly growing business of the company, is only a temporary one, while the permanent improvements to the main plant are planned and carried into effect.

UNUSUAL COMPLICATIONS FOLLOW SALE OF HORSE THE DEALER "BOUND OVER"

Because E. W. Wilson, of East Monroe sold his brother's horse for $60 under the delusion that he was selling one of his own, caused a pretty mix-up in this city Tuesday evening, and resulted in the filing of an affidavit against Robert Rutherford, a horse dealer of Columbus, charging him with horse stealing, and in Rutherford being bound over to the grand jury under $200 bond.

The story as nearly as could be ascertained from the jumbled tales of half a dozen witnesses, is that E. W. Wilson and his brother, Ernest Wilson of near East Monroe, came to this city Tuesday morning to dispose of eight head of horses, seven of which they claimed to own in partnership, the eighth a bay horse valued at $150, being the property of Ernest Wilson.

It happened that one of the part-

Local Cattle Buyer Expresses Views

Mr. Marion Dunlap received the following notice in the Kanass City Drivers' Telegram of June 23rd, regarding outlook for stock cattle:

Marion Dunlap of Washington C. H., O., who has been a patron of this market several years, is here to spend several days buying a string of stock cattle. Mr. Dunlap buys the light weight and good kinds.

"These stockers are now selling at more reasonable prices," Mr. Dunlap said. "Yet they can slice off a little more and then they will be just a little too strong the way cornfed cattle are selling. If feeders are going to remain in the business they must get the raw material down where they can use it to an advantage, and make some money in finishing the cattle for market."

Charges Lee With Contempt.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 28.—Prosecutor Cromley charged Michael T. Lee, Alfred Wolfe and David Mackey with contempt of court in removing Charles E. Lee was recently convicted of killing Metcalf with knockout drops, and given five years suspended sentence.

JOINING THE ARMY

Opportunities That Are Open to the Enlisted Man.

HIS PAY AND HIS PROSPECTS.

Even as a Private He Can Run His Salary Up to $35 a Month, and as a "Noncom" He Can Double That and In Time Retire Rich and Pensioned.

There are many opportunities open to the man who enlists in the United States army and wears the uniform of Uncle Sam with honor to himself and his country. The pay is good, the food is good, and the chances for advancement are numerous. It is up to the individual man himself to make good and to take advantage of the situation.

Writing in the Columbian Magazine on army affairs, Edward Marshall in discussing the status of the enlisted man says:

Summarized, this is what a man who thinks of marching for his Uncle Samuel as an enlisted man has to consider:

On first enlistment the soldier for Old Glory nowadays gets $15 a month, far better pay, for instance, than the average clerk's, for board, lodging and clothing are furnished by the government. If he qualifies as marksman he adds $2 to his pay; if as a sharpshooter he gets $3 in addition; if as an expert rifleman a full third more. Thus he may at once get $20 monthly cash and found if he is able and keeps busy.

If he enlists as a musician he gets $21 monthly to start off with, the highest "rookie's" pay. In the signal corps, the hospital corps and the engineers' corps first class privates get $18 monthly, and second class privates get $15.

Upon enlistment every man is allowed $83.70 for his uniforms, etc., and afterward $13.54 twice annually. At least one-half the men save money on their clothing allowance, which is more than ample. Privates' pay increases $3 a month for each three year enlistment. An expert rifleman who never gets to be a petty officer, therefore, can run his pay up, with good conduct and intelligence, to $35, a month and all his necessities "found" in five enlistments covering fifteen years.

Noncommissioned officers are taken from the ranks on recommendation of their company or troop commanders and are often given their posts upon their first enlistments. These men are really well paid. A sergeant major is allotted to each regiment. He receives $45 monthly when he is appointed and $4 additional per month each time he re-enlists. Regimental commissary sergeants, regimental quartermaster sergeants and the three battalion sergeants in each regiment get the same high pay. Each company has a first sergeant at $45, with an increase of $4 upon re-enlistment; a second sergeant at $36, with $3 increase for each re-enlistment; a corporal at $18, with $3 each for re-enlistments. The government acts as banker for the soldiers, too, if they desire to have it, and noncommissioned officers have left the service with as much as $20,000 saved—not one, but many. If he sticks tight to the service for full thirty years a noncommissioned officer is entitled to retirement on pay ranging from one-half to three-quarters of his service pay. Seventy dollars monthly is not unusual pay for a "noncom" to retire on. And every year of service seen outside the United States counts as two years at a home post. A man, therefore, after fifteen years of service in the islands may retire on his half pay.

The feed the "noncoms" and the other enlisted men are given is wholesome and well cooked, the medical attendance free and able, post and garrison schools have been provided at all posts for the primary branches, and at several posts trade schools have been established. A worthy man, no matter where he may be stationed, is almost certain to get transfer to a "school post" if he asks for it. Cooking, baking, blacksmithing, veterinary surgery, electrical and stationary engineering, all are taught at these trade schools, as well as many other things. Thus a boy who has bad little chance to get an education may, after he has joined the army, get a very good one.

There seems to be but one thing which army life does not offer to the enlisted man. But that one thing is home.

In its degree indeed the life of the enlisted man now offers more inducements than the life of the West Pointer. The commissioned officer's pay is small when his expenses and the effort he must make to get commissioned are considered, and, furthermore, the noncommissioned officer is not so subject to political influences as the West Pointer, who gives him his commands.

MOVED THE CONGREGATION.

De Koven Did It One Way, the Church Organist Another.

It is said that once when Reginald de Koven was touring the country he found himself in the town of Dayton on Sunday. They told Mr. de Koven that an Episcopal church in the neighborhood had a superb organ. Accordingly he went to that church, ascended the organ loft and sat beside the organist during the morning's service.

"You seem to know something about music," said the organist in a condescending way. "I'll let you dismiss the congregation if you like."

"Why, yes," said Mr. de Koven; "I would like that very much."

Accordingly at the end of the recessional he changed places with the organist and began to play Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." He played beautifully. The Dayton people, enthralled by the wonderful music, refused to depart.

A HEAVY HAND WAS LAID ON HIS SHOULDER.

They sat in rapt enjoyment, and after the "Spring Song" was finished Mr. de Koven began something of Chopin's.

Suddenly a heavy hand was laid on his shoulder and he was pushed off the music stool. "You can't dismiss a congregation," said the organist impatiently. "Watch and see how soon I'll get them out."

The organist was right. Half a dozen notes started the congregation toward the doors.—Argonaut.

Unappreciated.

The attorneys for the prosecution and defense had been allowed fifteen minutes each to argue the case. The attorney for the defense had commenced his argument with an allusion to the old swimming hole of his boyhood days. He told in flowery oratory of the balmy air, the singing birds, the joy of youth, the delights of the cool water—

And in the midst of it he was interrupted by the drawing voice of the judge.

"Come out, Chauncey," he said, "and put on your clothes. Your fifteen minutes are up."—Success Magazine.

Shy.

"Gustave's letters to me are exceedingly dull and commonplace," said one fair girl.

"Don't you know why?" responded the other.

"No."
"Gustave once served on the jury in a breach of promise case."

Noncommittal.

"So you've got into the bee-raising business, have you? You're getting along?"

"I was stung."

SWIPED SEVENTY-FIVE NICE YOUNG "FRYS" FROM THE CHICKEN ROOST

Seventy-five young chickens stolen and not a clue to the chicken thieves was the story told Monday morning by Supt. J. D. Kane, of the Hamm Fertilizer Co. Mr. Kane is an extensive chicken raiser at his home on S. North street, and has between 200 and 300 young chickens.

Sunday night at 10 o'clock he went out to the chicken yard and shut up the hen house for the night. In the morning when he went back to open it he found the door thrown back and the largest coop, with 75 young fry missing.

The coop was discovered over by the fence, but there was no trace of the chickens.

Mr. Kane has not the remotest idea as to the identity of the chicken thieves. Stealing chickens is now a penitentiary offense and it will go hard with the culprits if they are detected.

SORROW GREAT TEACHER SOFTENS HUMAN HEART

A CORRESPONDENT asks me this question:

"Does joy soften more hearts than sorrow, as the French proverb says? Which is the better educator, laughter or tears?"

In my humble opinion, trouble is the great teacher to whom we are compelled to go to school if we ever acquire sufficient wisdom even to begin to comprehend the great problem of life. It is only from having suffered ourselves that we learn to pity and forgive, and without this knowledge all other knowledge is the folly of fools.

Joy teaches us nothing but arrogance and egotism. Those who have never been anything but healthy and prosperous all their lives have no patience with those who are not as well off as themselves.

This is what makes the judgments of the young so hard and cruel. They have had no experience of sorrow to teach them that our misfortunes are not always of our own making, and how often we can do our best and yet fail. They are untired soldiers, who have never smelt the smoke of battle, yet who cry out "Coward!" upon all who come limping in, bloody and wounded, from the fight, instead of rolling in on a flower-bedecked chariot of victory.

It is old people, those whose eyes have been washed clear by tears, those who have stumbled and fallen and picked themselves up again and again, who know from experience how, in the conflict, the bravest heart often falters and the strongest hand grows weary, who have no word of reproach for the vanquished.

We have a phrase for this. We say of a man or a woman that he or she is "mellowed by age," and by this we simply mean that sorrow has taught her or him what joy never could.

The man who inherited a fortune, or who was born with the money-making instinct seldom has any patience with the man who does not get along. Any man who isn't an idiot or lazy, he thinks, can make money. As for not being able to get a job, he scoffs at the idea, and so when a poor beggar comes around he turns away from him with withering contempt.

It is the man who has known the pinch of poverty himself, who has been hungry and cold, and has felt the awful sickening disappointment with which he turned away from a door where even work was denied him, who has his whole soul melted with pity at the sight of every mendicant or every derelict of life on a park bench.

The Great Charity of the Poor.
Of course, it will be said that the rich are often very generous, and that when a man makes a few millions he builds libraries and churches and schools and hospitals. That is true; but all the benefactions of the rich, the great monuments they build to their charity and blazon with their names, sink into absolute nothingness, even when measured by the dollar standard, with the unrecorded charity that the poor extend out of their poverty to one another.

It is the poor man and woman who have seen their own children pale with want who divide their last loaf of bread with the neighbors' hungry brood. It is the family that has been evicted because it could not pay its rent that takes in the people next door whose poor sticks of furniture have been thrown out on the sidewalk.

The gifts of Rockefeller and Carnegie combined are doubled and trebled and quadrupled by the aggregate of the charity of the poor to one another every year.

It is only those who have suffered who understand the sacredness of sorrow. When you hear a man or a woman talk of the folly of some mother who is grieving over a dead baby, you may know that there is no vacant little chair in his or her household. None talk of the morbidity of sorrow except those who have never loved and lost.

Let the little white hearse stand once in front of the door of a man and a woman; let them law a waxen figure with its tiny hands folded over its little breast in a coffin, and you never hear them rail again at the folly of unavailing grief. Their hour in Gethsemane has taught them more than all the years of happy security in which they derided other people's sorrow as weakness because they had never felt any themselves.

It is strange and sad, but true, that we never learn anything except from our own experience, and that we can only understand what others must endure through having borne the same things ourselves.

This is why the soul is born in the travail of sorrow, and why our tears make the rain that must water all the beautiful and tender flowers that spring up about life. Unbroken prosperity makes an arid desert of the heart in which they parch and die.

BOY'S RUSSIAN SUIT.

The long revers and large sailor shaped collar give the touch of ornament to an otherwise plain little suit in the style now worn by all little boys. The jacket is quite plain except for the collar and revers, and these cross just above the waist, leaving a small shield exposed, and this is attached to a standing collar. Both may be omitted. The sleeve is regulation, with a group of tufts instead of a cuff at the wrist. These suits are made of pongee, silk, or linen, pique and gingham at all seasons and also of serge, cheviot and poplin.

The pattern (4906) is cut in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. Medium size requires 3 yards of 36 inch material.

Tried to Introduce Mescal Bean.

Six of the Indians of Pass creek district of the Pine Ridge reservation, charged with introducing the notorious mescal bean among their brethren, were recently haled before the celebrated Indian court by Maj. John R. Brennan, superintendent of the reservation. The use of this intoxicating alkaloid has been for some time more or less mixed up with the religious ceremonies of the Winnebagoes and Omahas of eastern Nebraska, but this is the first attempt on the part of the aristocrats of the Indian world, the Sioux, to charm themselves into happiness by the use of the subtle vegetable alkaloid. The outfit used in the celebration of the "mescal" service was confiscated by the Indian court.

CHILD LEAVES HOME, AND THERE'S A REASON

Police Court Incident Shows Result of Lack of Parental Interest.

"WISH I could make a cake," said the small voice, as the wee girl looked out disconsolately at the rain-washed streets. "Wish I could go out in the kitchen and make just a teeny, teeny cake for a tea party."

"Stop that noise or I'll whip you," interrupted a sharp, feminine voice. "I never saw such a child; you're never quiet a moment."

There was no effort to explain why the little child might not make a cake—no explanation that the mother needed quiet because she was writing letters—only the threat to punish, and with quivering lips and tear-filled eyes the small girl slipped from the window seat and left the room.

It was two days later that the same youngster, grimy, her cheeks streaked with tears and fairly white-lipped with terror, clung to the policeman's hand at the juvenile court and faced her mother across the railing.

"I don't know why she should run away," sobbed that same mother to the judge. "She is just a naughty child and has worried us to death. She has everything in the world to make her happy, and she ran away just because she couldn't make a cake."

And so, branded as a runaway, knowing that punishment awaited her at home, unable to explain, to tell the real reasons that had stirred her wee soul to revolt and sent her out to face the world alone, she was handed over to her mother.

But some understood—the kindly matron to whom the little child had prattled, the probation officer who found her sobbing in the shelter of an empty doorway and the judge, too, although he could do nothing but say as he has said so many, many times, "A happy child does not run away."

A lesson, not for ignorant mothers, but for you and your neighbors, for this wee girl was one of the many children who live in the big houses in a residential section, warm, well-clad and with toys to play with, but lacking the divine bond of mutual confidence that spells content to mothers and children both.

Strawberry Salad

Cut large strawberries in halves lengthwise, sprinkle with powdered sugar and let stand until thoroughly chilled. Serve in nests of white lettuce leaves, with whipped cream flavored with mayonnaise dressing, well seasoned with salt and paprika. Garnish with halves of strawberries and chopped pistachio nuts.

English Currant Loaf

Mix together one quart of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a cupful of cleaned currants and two tablespoonfuls of sugar, then rub in two large tablespoonfuls of butter. Beat one egg, add one cupful and a quarter of milk and add to the first mixture to make a soft dough. Mold in one large or two small loaves and bake in a hot oven at once.

Beef Cake

Take the remains of cold roast beef; to each pound of cold meat allow ¼ pound of bacon or ham; seasoning to taste, of pepper and salt, one small bunch of minced savory herbs, one or two eggs. Mince the beef very finely (if under done, it will be better), add to it the bacon, which must also be chopped very small, and mix well together. Season, stir in the herbs, and bind with an egg, or two should one not be sufficient. Make it into small square cakes, about half an inch thick, fry them in hot drippings, and serve in a dish with good gravy poured round them.

To Save Stirring

When a double boiler is not at hand, custards, porridge, sauces, milk and, in fact, anything that sticks to the pan bottom and burns causes a constant annoyance to the cook.

If a large clean marble is placed in the saucepan it will automatically do the stirring by rolling over the pan bottom while the contents boil, and thus save the constant worry and discomfort of standing over the hot fire, stirring.

Egg Pudding

Take one quart of milk, put in a double boiler and let come to a boil; mix nine tablespoonfuls of flour with one pint of cold milk, and stir into the boiling milk and let it remain on the fire until well cooked. Beat the yolks of twelve eggs, six tablespoonfuls of sugar, and three of melted butter. Take the boiler from the fire and stir in.

My writing desk and memo. box were full of splendid hints on all household matters, clipped from papers and magazines. To save time hunting for help among them, I took a day off for myself, classified the bunch, pasted them in a small blank-book I purchased for a few cents, leaving room for additional items, and indexed it. The time taken to do this has saved me more than I can tell.

I had often ruined enamel pans by chipping them when washing on account of scraping with a knife until I tried a bit of sandpaper. It will do wonders toward cleaning anything on which you usually use scouring soap or a knife, doing the work instantly. A sheet sufficient to last several weeks will cost 2 cents at the department stores.

Newark Gets Franchise.

South Bend, Ind., June 28.—The Grand Rapids Central league franchise was practically transferred by the Central league to Newark, O., the organization, following a nine hours session in South Bend, offering the club to Newark under certain conditions. Newark's first home game will be played with the South Bend champions on July 3.

Cornell Is Victor Over Columbia

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 28.—After leading for nearly 3½ miles over the smooth, rippling surface of the Hudson, the Columbia varsity crew blew up, and Cornell, suddenly bringing up with a wonderful burst of speed, forged to the front to win one of the most sensational eight-oared boat races ever rowed in this country. Cornell won by almost a length and a half, Columbia having four lengths over Pennsylvania, the Quakers being third all the way. Wisconsin was only a few feet behind the Quakers, with Syracuse many lengths away.

A Royal Connoisseur.

James B. Laughlin, of Pittsburg, recently discovered a hoax in his gallery and compelled a dealer to refund the $9,500 that had been paid for a $30 work of art.

Mr. Laughlin, as this episode shows, is a connoisseur of no mean ability. At a recent dinner he pointed out brilliantly the limitations and the shallowness of "court painters." Then he laughed and said:

"A movement was on foot for the alliance of King Charles of Wurtemberg and the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia. An emissary of the Russian court came to the young king, laid certain proposals before him and submitted a portrait in oils of the royal lady.

"King Charles, after a close scrutiny, said:

"This portrait flatters overmuch. The eyes are too large and brilliant, the hair too abundant, the complexion too flower-like and the neck and arms too beautiful altogether."

"But your majesty," said the astonished Russian, "you do not know the Grand Duchess."

"No," said the king, "but I know court painters."

Saturday Evening Post: The Earl of Warwick was a guest at a recent dinner of the Gridiron club in Washington. One of the skits was based on President Roosevelt's coming trip to Africa, and in it a small tent was used. Also the names of strange animals, such as bongo and wifflet, were introduced.

"Really," said the Earl, "I am surprised anybody should think the President could get along with so small a tent as that. It is quite unsuitable, I assure you. I have traveled extensively in Africa and I feel sure he will be disappointed if he expects to find animals there with such strange cognomens as those introduced in this portrayal."

An old Irishman named Casey made a lot of money as a contractor and built a fine house for his child ren.

The sons and daughters were much ashamed of the plebeian father, and Casey was always kept in the rear of the house when they had a party or a reception. One day Casey died and there was a great to-do about it. The children had a fine coffin with lashings of flowers, and Casey was laid in state in the parlor.

That evening an old Irish woman who had known Casey when he was a laborer, came and asked to see the face of her dead friend. They conducted her to the parlor.

She walked up to the coffin, took a long look and said: "Faith, Casey an' they've let ye into th' parlor at last."

"I am a student of rural humor," said George Bleistein, president of the Courier company, of Buffalo, "and these, to my mind, are the gems of my collection!"

"I met a farmer on his way to town up near my place in Livingston county, New York. 'Where are you going, Jim?' I asked him.

"'I'm goin' to town to git drunk, Jim replied, 'and, gosh, how I dread it!'"

"The other one was a horse trade. 'What's Bill laughing about?' I asked a farmer friend.

"'He's just bought a horse.' 'Well, what are you laughing about?'"

"'I sold it to him.'"

She Was Merely Plain.

At a party composed of adults in Hutchinson recently it was proposed that the entertainment consist of the games that prevailed in the good old days of childhood—"Postoffice," "Tin-tin," "London Bridge," etc. Finally a prize was offered for the person who could make the "ugliest face." The judges witnessed the contortion of faces for a while and then awarded the prize to an old maid. "You win," they said, handing her a box of bonbons. "I will thank you," she replied indignantly "to understand that I was not playing."—Kansas City Star.

The Creditor—"But that's what you told me a month ago."

The Debtor—"Well, didn't I keep my word?"

An Objection.

The Lawyer—"Madam, what is your age?"

The Opposition (interrupting)—Your honor, I submit that my honorable opponent is inciting the witness to perjury.

HOLLAND PAWN IN GREAT GAME OF STRATEGISM

Proposal to Fortify Coast Brings on Great Row in Europe.

BERLIN.—[Special]—Holland, the most inoffensive country in Europe, has become the latest pawn in the game of international politics.

It all came about in this way: The Netherlands proposed to spend $15,000,000 to fortify Flushing, The Scheldt and the North Sea coast. No doubt the entire seaboard is inadequately protected and in the case of no other country would there have been any objection raised to the program.

But in this instance a tremendous row was created. And as is the rule in international political questions in the world today, Germany and England were the powers chiefly involved. Holland is Germany's natural outlet to the sea. Its coasts are difficult of approach on account of the sandbanks which interfere with deep draught navigation. No warships can approach them except by way of the main harbors.

But possession of this coast would enormously benefit German commerce. In time of war with Germany, England would try to land on Dutch soil. Unfortified, there could be little resistance.

Then a land force could readily make a dash against Germany, at the same time remaining comparatively near its base—and safely at sea. But with a fortified coast the enterprise would be exceedingly difficult.

Naturally, when the Dutch plan leaked out, it was instantly suspected in London and Paris that Holland had entered into a secret treaty with Germany.

Color was lent to these suspicions by the fact that the fortifications could not possibly be of any value except against England.

Apart from this, it was clear that the fortification of the Dutch coast must infringe Belgium's neutrality, which the powers guaranteed by the treaty of 1839.

That is to say, inasmuch as the River Scheldt commands approach to Antwerp, Belgium would be involved in the unpleasantness the moment Holland closed the stream to navigation.

Not wishing to be drawn into any European conflict, Belgium has therefore been protesting vigorously against being imperiled.

As a matter of fact there is small doubt that, even though the kaiser has made no definite arrangement with the Dutch to fortify their coast, he would be willing to make any offer in reason to get them to do so.

In any event, in time of war, he would probably seize the country without compunction.

There is little question that English and French statesmen think, too, that the fortification program, if carried out, will make Holland even more tempting to Germany than at the present time.

All sorts of assurances have of course been given from Berlin to The Hague that Dutch independence will be respected. But even here there is a good deal of cynical wondering—remembering the recent Bosnia-Herzegovina grab by Germany's ally, Austria—how much dependence is to be placed upon such promises.

Is the kaiser likely, Germans ask to resist any temptation of achieving his ambition for a long line of seaboard? It is generally agreed here that, now the Dutch have shown signs of yielding to Germany, the days of its independence are numbered.

Many Dutchmen, too, are afraid of this, as they have said openly in the parliamentary debates on the subject at The Hague. It was this party which, while Queen Wilhelmina remained childless, was in mortal terror lest the crown should pass, on her death, to a German prince and which swore it would rather transform the country into a republic than be ruled by a German.

At any rate, Holland has had the satisfaction of knowing that, for the past few weeks, it has attracted more attention in Europe than at any other time since the seventeenth century.

Possible Explanation.

Mrs. Biggs—"My husband seems to be lost in thought about half the time."

Mrs. Diggs—"I suppose his ideas are so far apart that he can't help getting lost on the way from one to the other."

Rich Soil.

The late Senator Allison was a stickler for personal cleanliness, even for personal elegance. There was no quicker way for a man to get on his black look than to be unshaven, to have the trousers unpressed, the boots unpolished. In Dubuque there was a decidedly slovenly lawyer. The lawyer appeared one afternoon at a meeting with a rose in his buttonhole. The sight of a rose in the buttonhole of such a sloven excited a good deal of comment. "I wonder where on earth he got it?" said a surprised observer. Senator Allison smiled. "Probably," said he, "it grew there."—Tit-Bits.
